In response, Mr. P.B. Kotur proposed an important initiative to enhance the department's impact by encouraging collaborative BE projects involving Civil Engineering and other engineering disciplines. He emphasized the need to focus on multidisciplinary projects, which align with industry trends and broaden the scope of innovation and problem-solving.

Following this, Dr. Sharana Reddy, HoD of Electrical & Electronics Engineering (EEE), shared insights into the department's academic progress, faculty contributions, and other key activities. He also outlined a clear roadmap for 2025, focusing on continuous improvement in academic outcomes and research initiatives.

During the discussion, Mr. P.B. Kotur made two crucial suggestions for both departments. Firstly, he recommended shifting the focus from counting publications and patents on a faculty-wise basis to emphasizing high-quality and impactful research outputs. This approach aligns with the institution's 2025 targets and enhances its reputation in research and innovation. Secondly, he highlighted the importance of quantifying the outcomes of internship training and certification programs, suggesting that these metrics be presented as measurable data to assess their effectiveness and contribution to student success.

It is also suggested that the placement details be provided in terms of industry placements, higher studies, and students who have opted for family businesses.

It was concluded with a consensus on implementing these recommendations to achieve the strategic goals set for 2025.

During the discussion, the members suggested that the placement data presentation be categorized by salary packages and include a list of students placed in each salary bracket. This would provide a clearer understanding of the distribution of placements and help identify trends in the types of companies hiring.

Mr. P. B. Kotur recommended introducing Japanese language training starting from the 3rd year, enabling students to qualify for international job offers, especially in Japan. He also emphasized the importance of making students "skill-ready," ensuring they are equipped to secure placements under any market conditions, even during economic downturns.

Additionally, Mr. Kotur proposed expanding the Super 120 batch to Super 240, which would allow more students to receive focused placement support and increase placement success rates.
